Further exhibitions in 2007: at the end of March the gallery presents works and installations of the London based artist Gereon Krebber, which show reflexions particular materials and their transformation in sculpture. It is followed by an exhibition of new work by the Irish artist Fergus Feehily, whose work resists categorization, occupying a space between non-representation and image. Afterwards the gallery shows works of Berlin based artist Jorinde Voigt, who deals with repetitive structures on the perception level. Focus of her works is mostly cliché afflicted objects, which have corporate representativeness.
